CATHY ABRAHAM

(b. 1968 Cape Town, South Africa)

'Much of my work is spatiotemporal, meaning that it belongs to both time and space. Time in that it is allegorical, lamenting past traumas or occurrences; and space in that these ungraspable yet palpable forces continue to occupy tangible physical and emotional space in the present. I see this as a sensuous entanglement of existence simultaneously forming a visible metaphor for life in all its ungraspable transcendence.'

Cathy Abraham's creative work brings together seemingly disparate entities through a participatory and ritual-based practice. While she has used a range of mediums reflecting her subject matters, including film, installation and sculpture, Abraham currently focuses on repetitive processes in abstract painting. She works systematically, using counting of forms to unlock meaning in the search for a deeper understanding of the purpose of the everyday.

Abraham's practice is grounded in her belief in the links between art and science; spiritual practice and reincarnation; and the search for ways of shifting perspectives. Her work challenges notions of time and space; as well as expectation versus reality – collapsing past, present and future.

Abraham specialised in process-based art at the Michaelis School of Fine Arts, University of Cape Town, where she graduated with a Post Graduate Diploma in 2016 and a Master's in Fine Art with Distinction in 2018.
